REVA Earns ARGUS Platinum Certification

REVA, Inc., the largest dedicated, fixed-wing, aero-medical services provider in the Americas, last week received ARGUS Platinum certification, the highest rating for aviation safety and quality. A year-long preparation and extensive safety audit by ARGUS International, a leading provider of air-charter safety ratings, resulted in REVA receiving this prime and infrequently-awarded rating which is testament to the success of REVA's top core value, Safety.

Internationally, there are 511 ARGUS-rated aviation Operators with the majority being Gold-rated, and 15 being Gold Plus-rated. REVA is now one of only 141 Operators worldwide that have earned the highest quality rating, Platinum.

"We are very excited to receive the ARGUS Platinum rating. A great deal of effort was made by the whole team to ensure that our documentation, policies, and practices align with the ARGUS Platinum Standard. The Platinum Rating recognizes our accomplishments in our Safety Management System, Emergency Response Planning, and adherence to standard operating procedures in Aviation, Maintenance, and Dispatch," stated Emma Roberts, REVA's Director of Safety.

“Safety is the top core value for REVA, and we are committed to continually enhancing the safety of our passengers and crew. Achieving the highest level that can be reached within the ARG/US rating system shows the commitment that REVA and its employees make to safety every day,” Roberts added.

ARGUS Ratings are also integrated on AirCharterGuide.com in which REVA, Inc. is listed, and is available to clients any time.
