REVA Achieves Finalist Status for ITIJ Air Ambulance Provider of the Year

BRISTOL, England -- REVA Inc. Air Ambulance is a Provider of the Year finalist in this year's ITIJ Industry Awards competition, announced officials of the International Travel & Health Insurance Journal this week.

"We at REVA, are very proud and honored to be recognized by the respected ITIJ and its commitment to showcasing the world's best in the medical travel field," said CEO Stuart Hayman this week from REVA Inc. headquarters in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

ITIJ Industry Award for Provider of the Year is based on an air ambulance company's "innovation, achievement, and quality of service," according to ITIJ's Sarah Watson, the journal's press editor. Both domestic and international air ambulance company providers around the world were eligible. Provider of the Year candidates are evaluated by independent experts in the field of air ambulance providers as well as in the global context of travel and health insurance industry professionals. This year, REVA and two other finalists will take the stage at the awards ceremony scheduled during ITIJ's international convention November 13 in Venice, Italy.

As a leading member of a world-wide helping community, REVA Inc. in the past year has expanded and deepened professionally, technologically, and in its commitments to charity and staff enrichment. The firm is an active member in leading accreditation, auditing, professional and quality-assurance organizations that "further our mission to ensure patients receive the highest level of medical care while being transported with us," Hayman said.
